We are delighted to welcome back Simon Malzer who hosted our last seminar in 2004. Simon has been in the vanguard of developing new models of support which promote independence of choice for service users, enabling them to stretch themselves and find their own sense of direction. He has worked extensively on cultural change issues as a manager within larger and smaller organisations and, during more recent years, as an organisational consultant in the public and voluntary sectors

Joining us this year is Duncan Wallace who has over 12 years of consultancy experience supporting organisations and social movements to increase their intended impact in the world around them. Duncan's experience originates in the voluntary sector where he worked with a wide range of organisations, from hospices to healthy living centres. He has an enduring interest in organisational culture and the unconscious dynamics which affect performance and resilience.

Our third speaker for the day is James Hilder who will be known to many of you with his work in developing and support social enterprises at local, regional and national level. An energetic leader, passionate about the power of communities to achieve more for themselves and to expand social enterprise, James delivers consultancy support through An Roth Associates and is an experienced Social Enterprise Academy Tutor delivering programmes at home and abroad. He believes stronger partnerships are essential to delivering local services and will share his thoughts on the do's and don'ts!

Join our experts with a range of interactive workshops, discussions and practical tools expect to be inspired and motivated from attending this seminar right. Early booking is essential – limited places
